Opening Pandora's Last Box: Hope

To educate those who seek enlightenment.

It is our will to have love and caring for one another, for the lack of empathy destroys all hope.

The Goals of the Pandoran Society

- 1) File Articles of Incorporation (and eventually the 501c3)
- 2) Establish Assessment and Aptitude Testing for all levels of training
- 3) Establish location for Rituals, Services, Fellowship
- 4) Create lessons for congregation using universal truths that are non-offensive spiritually fulfilling.
- 5) Establish "Dean of Education" position, this office develops new training programs and administers them. As well as creating teaching positions for each department by aptitude testing clergy. Specialized classes developed by other clergy members must go through the Deans office, and be evaluated for content.
- 6) Define the workload of the Geri and Freyki, review applicants. Until they are in place, clergy and founders are required to act as the administration.
- 7) Assist in the creation of purification and shifting rituals designed to help those experiencing problems move forward.
- 8) Create a PR protocol for dealing with the uneducated community, a protocol that raises no moral objections.

Terminology and FAQs

(con't from Page 1) ...illusionist that entertains with skill; it may mean the Catholic that faithfully prays to Mary for deliverance from some situation, or addiction. Simply put, magick is creating or changing our reality by other than mundane means. This means that when we pray, we are working magick, since magick is the application of True Will to any problem we feel we need assistance in handling. In an Esoteric sense, magick is the fabric of reality that shapes and molds our worlds into what we desire. Does this mean life can be whatever you want? Yes, however, remember that magick is an equivalency system; this means you get out what you put in, or in computer terms garbage in, garbage out. If you keep this Law of Equivalent Exchange in mind, understanding magick becomes very simple.

Are there reasons for not doing magic(k)?

There is one comprehensive thought when in consideration of performing magick: the Law of Return. This law states that whatever you Will into being, you are responsible for, in simple terms, if you work a spell for a snow day so you can stay home from work, there may be those who perish due to the harsh conditions. One could conceivably be held accountable.

This is a hypothetical situation, but you can see how dangerous it can be to fool with nature. In addition to the Law of Return, it is an accepted Law that you may not infringe upon the free will of another.

In the instance of Karma (a self-imposed set of strictures and punishments for misdeeds that serve as reminders to the spirit of past bad behavior), the return on an act of infringement will constitute a backlash. This means that love spells, and other spells of that type are considered a magical no-no. Love spells that target another infringe upon the targeted individual's right to choose for themselves.

Most honest and sincere practitioners refuse to perform these spells outright, others may perform them, but only if they are worded so that no one's free will is infringed upon.

Terminology and FAQs (con't)

How does Magic(k) work?

This is a much more complicated subject, as understanding the mechanics of magick requires a basic understanding of energy systems and the Law of Equivalent Exchange. Magick relies upon a source of energy to make the change requested by the User. Energy, as we learned in school, is eternal. It never is destroyed because it transforms itself into some other object or item. Energy, then, is a perfect carrier for our hopes, dreams, and desires, as it can transform itself into the appropriate energy for our need. Usually, this energy source is God- hence, the prayer. In almost every religion, or base of theological thought, the premise that God is willing to assist us is prevalent, and where the magical practitioner differs from the common person is simply effort and terminology. Prayer is the spell of the layman, or non-practitioner. It requires nothing more than speaking aloud what you desire. Why, you ask, aren't all my prayers answered? Simple- The law of equivalent exchange. When praying, you are giving nothing in return for the energy requested; the prayer goes as far as your thought can take it. Where a magickal practitioner's approach is different is that the practitioner plans the spell, utilizing many different tools and magickal techniques for the best effect. He will prepare to raise his personal energy to use for the releasing of the spell, should he wish to work on his own and not with his God. The practitioner will use incense, chanting, music, and even pictures to change his brainwave pattern to alpha- a meditative state, wherein he can choose the changes he wishes to make, and implement them. After mundane sources have been extinguished, why not utilize this resource? No matter what realm of faith you subscribe to, the energy is there to be used.

Final Thoughts?

“There are more things in Heaven and Earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy.” -Hamlet
Magick is. That is all you need to know.
